

Academic Writing

Academic writing, or scholarly writing is a prose register that is based on the features of "evidence...that the writer(s) have been persistent, open-minded, and disciplined in study"; that more important "reason over emotion"; and that imagines a reader who is "coolly rational, reading for information. The general purpose of academic writing is to present information in order to display a clear understanding of a particular subject.

The goal of academic writing is not simply creating new ideas, but to offer a new perspective and link between already established ideas. This is why gathering background information and having past knowledge is so important in academic writing. Writing should not be casual, but be in an appropriate formal register.

Characteristics Of Academic Writing

Emphasize on Style

It has a formal tone and style, but it is not complex and does not require the use of long sentences and complicated vocabulary.

Content

In academic writing, the overall structure of academic writing is formal and logical. It must be cohesive and possess a logically organized flow of ideas; this means that the various parts are connected to form a unified whole. There should be narrative links between sentences and paragraphs so that the reader is able to follow your argument.

Language

Your language should be concise, formal, and express precisely what you want it to mean. Do not use vague expressions that are not specific or precise enough for the reader to derive exact meaning Well-structured paragraphs and clear topic sentences enable a reader to follow your line of thinking without difficulty.
